“ My deepest condolences to Clem's family. My dad, Carl Hansel, was Clem's first cousin. They were close in age and I believe they grew up living near each other and were close as children. When I was growing up, we would sometimes run into Clem in public and Dad was always so happy to see him. There was an annual Hansel Family wiener roast every fall back in the 1980's and Dad always looked forward to seeing his relatives, especially Clem. I believe it was in 2012 that one of their mutual cousins celebrated her 80th birthday. There was a party in the social hall of Brighton Presbyterian Church on a Sunday afternoon. Dad and Clem were both there and spent most of the afternoon visiting with each other.
